Training Description

Target Audience: Educators and other School Professionals

Educating students with disabilities is a profession that can be emotionally charged and challenging. This can lead to conflict in the process of developing IEPs and in implementing them. However, there are things that educators can do to avoid conflict with parents and to increase the chance that the process will be as smooth and successful as possible. This session will discuss issues and strategies to help parents with this process.

Training Objectives

This session will provide participants with practical tips designed to avoid conflict and to assist in keeping a school district compliant with the legal requirements applicable to IEP meetings, process and implementation issues.
